While I knew that Trillium is a for profit entity, I was shocked to learn that they make so much profit. So much profit that a national firm wants to buy them.

My experience with for profit medical entities is that they choose profit over quality again and again. So by letting them handle our Oregon Health Plan, we are probably not getting the best quality care for our citizens that we could get from a non-profit entity. And the Oregon tax payers are wasting their money on profit instead of service.

What difference will it make if an in-state or out-state entity rips us off?

The real problem is limiting profit while providing excellent service.

I want to know why OHP is wasting money paying obscene profits at the cost of taxpayers and care recipients?

Thank you for considering my views. Georgette Silber
