You don't often get email from maychancook@gmail.com. Learn why this is important

Health insurance premiums have been shooting through the roof the last few years taking more and more from our paychecks. Last year, our employer switched from United Healthcare to Providence and after a lengthy switch of hospitals, providers, and lab/imaging facilities we will be forced to change to a different insurance provider in the fall.

We are crossing our fingers that our employer will find affordable coverage that generally will be accepted at our current provider so we do not need to jump ship again and have to start the process of finding new providers. It's hard enough to find PCPs that will take new patients. And if they do accept new patients, it's a 2-3 month wait before we can see our new provider. Patients are left in the lurch if we need medical attention or basic preventive care.

Thanks for letting consumers make these necessary comments,

May
